

ABSTRACT

A method for inferring information about the conductivity of a medium from ground penetrating radar (GPR) data using a calculated effective penetration limit of the GPR system, including various methods for calculating the effective penetration limit.